DESIGN DISCOVERIES FROM NEW YORK AND BEYOND

LOOKING SHARP!

Home furnishings designers have been pulling out all the stops, creating new introductions that are poised and polished to perfection. Philippe Malouin's Sacha chair, with its crisp, upholstered tailoring, ingenious back support, and elegant form, is most certainly the shape of things to come. Available in multiple colorways (shown: red), $2,250, at Property, 401 Bway., NYC, 917-237-0123, propertyfurniture.com.

1. CRACK-ALLURE

Belgian artist and designer Jos Devriendt's heady crackle-glaze ceramics pay homage to the ancient art of raku, which dates from 15th- and 16th-century Japanese tea ceremonies. His Night and Day 433 lamp is a certified stunner 24/7. $11,600, at Demisch Danant, 30 W. 12th St., NYC, 212-989-5750, demischdanant.com.

2. ELEPHANT IN THE ROOM

For those perennially on a style safari, the German-born, Porto-based designer Christian Haas has just unveiled his Elephant chaise longue at 180 the Store in Tribeca. Originally developed for Karimoku New Standard, it features an ample upholstered frame on lacquered Japanese oak legs. $3,600, 180 Duane St., NYC, 212-226-5506, 180thebestore.com.

3. SKY'S THE LIMIT

Made in collaboration with Marcel Wanders Studio, Flos's woven recycled-polyester mesh Skynest pendant casts an inviting LED-fired glow and glistens like a dome of spun sugar. Available in four colorways (shown: Almond), $4,345, 152 Greene St., NYC, 212-941-4760, flos.com.

4. KILLER B

The Mr. B table, from Toronto-based Studio Paolo Ferrari's Edition 4 collection, positively shimmers in high-gloss lacquer—in this case, deep oxblood, although it's customizable in any hue from Benjamin Moore. Time to break out the martinis! From $10,000 for a 24" occasional table, $12,400 for a 36" cocktail table, and $14,000 for a 48" cocktail table, at Colony, 324 Canal St., 2nd fl., NYC, 212-334-3808, goodcolony.com.

5. INTO THE FOLD

Designed by Los Angeles-based Estudio Persona, the Ruban bench is the quintessence of yin-yang: a substantial solid beech base cradled by delicate origami-like arms. Available in 28 colorways (shown: Menerbes in Orange), from $7,000 at Pierre Frey (D&D), 979 Third Ave., Ste. 1611, NYC, 212-421-0534, pierrefrey.com.

PATTERN PLAY

The season's newest introductions have some step in their repeat

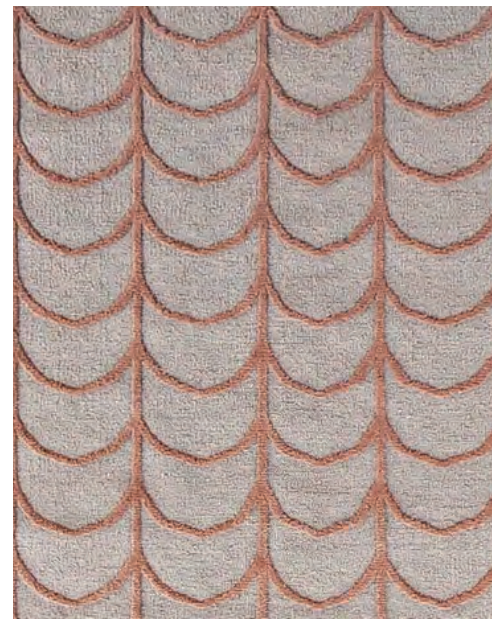

MARRAKESH EXPRESS

Taking its name from one of Morocco's most storied hotels, the Vale's Mamounia wallcovering features intricate layering that recalls the work of the country's legendary artisans. $352 per roll, at Fabricut (D&D), 979 Third Ave., Ste. 915, NYC, 212-838-5253, thevalelondon.co.uk.

PRINT CHARMING

The trompe l'oeil trellis motif in Harlequin's Wood Frog wallpaper (shown here in Wild Water) requires a leap of the imagination, courtesy of its animated amphibians. Available to the trade at Sanderson Design Group (D&D), 979 Third Ave., Ste. 409, NYC, 212-319-7220, harlequin.sandersondesigngroup.com.

OPERATIC DRAMA

Los Angeles-based designer Erik Lindstrom has released his latest production, and it's quite a showstopper: the 100 percent Tibetan wool rug called Opera, shown here in khaki and coral. Encore, encore! $80 per sq. ft., 9 E. 19th St., 2nd fl., NYC, 212-466-6360, eriklindstrom.com.

EASY, TIGER

Fast and fleet and hard to beat, Dedar's new viscose/cotton Tiger Beat will get your heart racing and make you swoon like a lovestruck teenager. Available to the trade in five colorways (shown: Fragola Menta), (D&D), 979 Third Ave., Ste. 1009, NYC, 646-870-0799, dedar.com.

THAT'S AMORE

Named for an island in the Bay of Naples, Sferra's Procida sheet collection (shown here in Kiwi) is the very essence of a breezy summer day in Italy—and is now available at the brand-new Sferra townhouse in Manhattan. Pricing ranges from $75 to $650, 11 E. 20th St., NYC, sferra.com.

TOTALLY CORKERS

A collaboration between David Rockwell and Maya Romanoff, Porto Deco in Bacchus Blue is a jazzy symphony in three parts: cork, metallic foil, and nonwoven paper. Available to the trade at Maya Romanoff (D&D), 979 Third Ave., Ste. 922, NYC, 212-588-9707, mayaromanoff.com.
